Dear Executive Secretary of the La Board of Ethics,

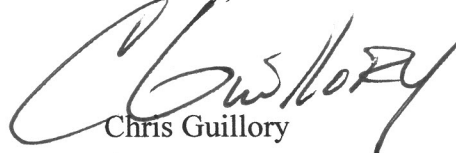

During my 2019 campaign for Evangeline Parish Assessor, I was employed by a family owned Oil & Gas service company. The company's name is Ty Energy Services which services oil and gas rigs in the Haynesville Shell in North Louisiana.

My father-in-law was gracious and allowed me, during my last 3 months of the campaign, to stay home in order to knock on doors and attend campaign related events. He was generous enough to also continue compensating me although I was not making any sales for the company.

After the election, I stayed in North Louisiana for a couple weeks in order to make up for the lost time and sales for Ty Energy Services. During that time a notice was sent to my house requesting that I complete the 10-G form by a said due date. My wife does not open my mail so the letter was put aside for me until I returned home from North Louisiana. Upon opening the letter, I realized the I was going to be filing late due to the fact that the due date had already passed. I then called and spoke with someone in the Ethics Department. They informed me that I would be able to express my reasoning for the filing tardiness at a later date.

I am reaching out requesting any assistance you could give me regarding this matter. It would be greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,

Chris Guillory
Assessor
